

Edge, Dexter. 2014. "A report on the Viennese premiere of La villanella rapita (28 Nov 1785)." In: Mozart: New Documents, edited by Dexter Edge and David Black. First published 12 Jun 2014; updated 20 Jan 2018. [direct link]

A report on the Viennese premiere of La villanella rapita (28 Nov 1785)

Dexter Edge

Gazzetta universale, [vol. 12], no. 99, Sat, 10 Dec 1785

[787]

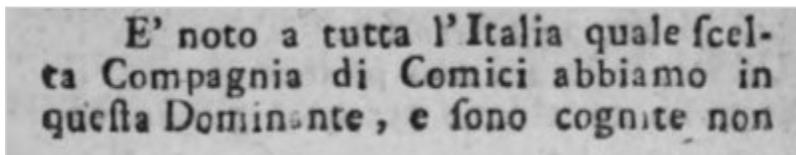

GERMANIA
VIENNA 28. Novembre.

[...]

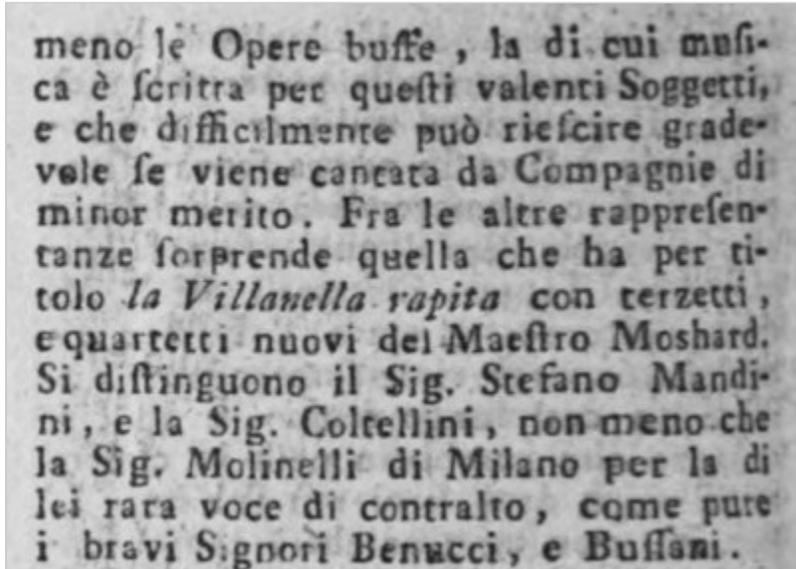

[788]

E' noto a tutta l'Italia quale scelta Compagnia di Comici abbiamo in questa Dominante, e sono cognite non meno le Opere buffe, la di cui musica è scritta per questi valenti Soggetti, e che difficilmente può riescire gradevole se viene cantata da Compagnie di minor merito. Fra le altre rappresentanze sorprende quella che ha per titolo la Villanella rapita con terzetti, e quartetti nuovi del Maestro Moshard. Si distinguono il Sig. Stefano Mandini, e la Sig. Coltellini, non meno che la Sig. Molinelli di Milano per la di lei rara voce di contralto, come pure i bravi Signori Benucci, e Bussani.

[translation:]

GERMANY
VIENNA 28 November.

[...]

All of Italy knows what a distinguished comic company we have in this capital [Vienna], and just as well known are the opere buffe, the music of which is written for these talented actors, and which is unlikely to succeed when sung by lesser companies. Among the operas, the one entitled La villanella rapita, with new trios and quartets by Maestro Mozart, is remarkable. Signor Stefano Mandini and Signora Coltellini stand out, as does Signora Molinelli of Milan for her rare alto voice, and likewise the good Signori Benucci and Bussani.

---

Commentary

The Viennese production of La villanella rapita was a pasticcio based on an opera by Francesco Bianchi, with several inserted numbers by local composers. The production premiered on Fri, 25 Nov 1785. Mozart contributed two ensembles: the first-act trio “Mandina amabile,” K. 480, and the second-act quartet "Dite almeno, in che mancai," K. 479. The singers in the trio were soprano Celeste Coltellini (as Mandina), tenor Vincenzo Calvesi (as the Count), and baritone Stefano Mandini (as Biagio, Mandina's father); the quartet was sung by these three, plus the bass Francesco Bussani (as Pippo, Mandina's betrothed). "Molinelli" was Rosalinda Marconi-Molinelli, who sang the role of Giannina, a character not in either of Mozart's ensembles. Just a few months later, Stefano Mandini created the role of Count Almaviva in the premiere of Mozart's Le nozze di Figaro, on 1 May 1786. Bussani was Mozart's first Bartolo and Antonio in Figaro; he also sang the roles of the Commendatore and Masetto in the Viennese premiere of Don Giovanni on 7 May 1788 and created the role of Don Alfonso in the premiere of Così fan tutte on 26 Jan 1790. Calvesi was Mozart's first Ferrando in Così. Contrary to the report transcribed above, Francesco Benucci (Mozart's first Figaro) did not sing in La villanella rapita; the error is corrected in a second report in Gazzetta universale a few weeks later (see our entry for 12 Jan 1786).

Count Zinzendorf, who attended the second performance of La villanella rapita in Vienna on 30 Nov, wrote in his diary:

[...] Au Spectacle. La villanella rapita. Le spectacle est gai, la musique contient quelques morceaux de Moshart, les paroles beaucoup d'équivoques. Le soufflet répété. [...]
[Link 1998, 258; also Dokumente, 225]

[...] To the theater. La villanella rapita. The piece is cheerful, the music contains some pieces by Mozart, the text much innuendo. The slap was repeated. [...]

The "slap" came at the end of scene 18 in the first act, the culmination of an argument between Mandina (Coltellini) and her betrothed Pippo (Bussani). The slap had similarly delighted the audience at the premiere, where the scene likewise had to be repeated, as reported in the Bayreuther Zeitung:

Schreiben aus Wien, vom 28 Nov. [...]
Als neulich
unsere beliebte Sängerin Cottellini [sic] in dem Stück ihrem Liebhaber eine Ohrfeige zu geben hatte; so war das Publikum so wohl mit ihrer Austheilung zufrieden, daß sie sowohl Gesang
als Actus wiederholen musste; so sehr auch der Sänger mit den lächerlichen Stellungen da=
gegen protestirte; so musste der appetitus squ=
[sic]rius der Zuschauer befriediget werden.
[Bayreuther Zeitung, no. 146, Tue, 6 Dec, 1125]

Letter from Vienna, 28 Nov. [...]
When recently our beloved singer Coltellini during a performance had to give her lover a slap, the public was so happy with its administration that she had to repeat the song as well as the act; and as much as the [male] singer protested with ridiculous contortions, even so the appetitus spurius [morbid appetite] of the spectators had to be satisfied.

---

Notes (↑)

The Gazzeta universale was published in Florence, which as capital of the Grand Duchy of Tuscany, ruled at that time by the emperor's brother Leopold, retained strong links to Vienna.

Michtner (1970, 195) lists "Francesco Marchesi" in the role of Biaggio in the Viennese production of La villanella rapita. The Viennese performing score of the opera (ÖNB, Musiksammlung, KT 467), which includes cast names written on the inside front cover, also lists "Marchesi" in the role of Biaggio (Link 1998, 258, note 106; Link gives the singer's first name as Antonio). However, Mozart, in his Verzeichniß, names Mandini as one of the intended singers in both of his ensembles (K. 479 and 480), and the report in Gazzetta universale confirms that it was Stefano Mandini (who had a major role in the opera), not his brother Paolo (who seems to have taken the secondary role of Paolino).

The poster for the premiere of La villanella rapita in Vienna is dated 25 Nov 1785. However, Deutsch (Dokumente, 225) points to a report in the Wiener Zeitung (not transcribed in Dokumente) that gives the date of the premiere as 28 Nov.

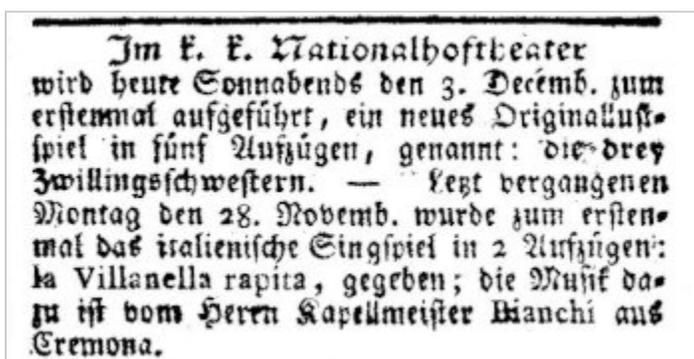

Im k. k. Nationalhoftheater

[...]

— Letzt vergangenen

Montag den 28. Novemb. wurde zum erstenmal das italienische Singspiel in 2 Aufzügen: la Villanella rapita, gegeben; die Musik dazu ist vom Herrn Kapellmeister Bianchi aus Cremona.

[WZ, no. 97, Sat, 3 Dec 1785, 2793]

Im k. k. Nationalhoftheater wird heute Sonnabends den 3. Decemb. zum erstemal aufgeführt, ein neues Originalkustspiel in fünf Aufzügen, genannt: die drey Zwillingschwestern. — Letzt vergangenen Montag den 28. Novemb. wurde zum ersten-mal das italienische Singspiel in 2 Aufzügen:
la Villanella rapita, gegeben; die Musik dazu ist vom Herrn Kapellmeister Bianchi aus Cremona.

In the k. k. National Court Theater

[...]

— This past Monday
the 28 November, the 2-act Italian opera La villanella rapita was given for the first time; its music is by the Herr Kapellmeister Bianchi from Cremona.

(The report itself is not in Dokumente or its supplements.) The most recent Monday preceding the report was indeed 28 Nov, and Deutsch concluded that the report implied that the premiere must have been deferred from 25 Nov. However, the court theater was almost certainly closed on 28 and 29 Nov in commemoration of the death of Empress Maria Theresa, who died on 29 Nov 1780; the Viennese court theaters were closed on those two dates in all other years from Maria Theresa's death up to and including 1791 (see the "Täglicher Spielplan" in Hadamowsky). That the theaters were indeed also closed on these two days in 1785 is confirmed by a later passage in the report from Vienna published in the Bayreuther Zeitung under the date 28 Nov:

[...]

Heute und morgen bleiben die Schauspiel= häuser wegen der Feyer des Sterbetags unse= rer unvergeßlichen großen Maria Theresa
geschlossen, und wir empfinden noch tief im
Herzen Ihren Verlust
[Bayreuther Zeitung, no. 146, Tue, 6 Dec 1785, 1125]

[...]

Today and tomorrow the playhouses will remain closed on account of the observance of the anniversary of the death of the our unforgettable great Maria Theresa, and we still feel her loss deeply in our hearts.

Thus the date on the poster is correct, and the date in the Wiener Zeitung is wrong: La villanella rapita was certainly premiered in Vienna on Fri, 25 Nov 1785.

Both Google Books and the Hathi Trust have scans of two different copies of this volume of Gazzetta universale, one from the University of Michigan, and one from Princeton University. The top of the scan of the relevant page from the Michigan copy is cut off. The OCR of the two copies differs: for the Princeton copy, the OCR correctly reads the composer's name as "Moshard"; the OCR for the Michigan copy gives "Mcshard". The document was found by a search on "villanella," which is correct in the OCR for both copies.

We are grateful to Matteo Magarotto for his translation of the item from Gazzetta universale, and to Ian Allan for his advice on the translation of the item in the Bayreuther Zeitung.

Bibliography ( ↑ )

Link, Dorothea. 1998. The National Court Theatre in Mozart's Vienna: Sources and Documents, 1783–1792. Oxford: Clarendon Press.

Michtner, Otto. 1970. Das alte Burgtheater als Opernbühne von der Einführung des deutschen Singspiels (1778) bis zum Tod Kaiser Leopolds II. (1792). Theatergeschichte Österreichs, 3/1. Vienna: Hermann Böhlau Nachf.

---

Credit: DE

Author: Dexter Edge

Link(s): Google Books \(University of Michigan\); Google Books \(Princeton\); Hathi \(University of Michigan\); Hathi \(Princeton\)

Search Term: villanella

Source Library: University of Michigan, AP37 .G29; Princeton University, 1010.38

Categories: Biography, Reception

First Published: Thu, 12 Jun 2014

Updated: Sat, 20 Jan 2018

---

Citation:

Edge, Dexter. 2014. "A report on the Viennese premiere of La villanella rapita (28 Nov 1785)." In: Mozart: New Documents, edited by Dexter Edge and David Black. First published 12 Jun 2014; updated 20 Jan 2018. [direct link]